

My husband and I didn't think satellite radio would be all that different until we got it with our car and tried it. We were converted in a month. We love it! It provides variety that we can't get locally with clear, steady reception. We don't find ourselves fiddling with the radio controls while driving, a definite safety plus. The station is always there. We can pick just the kind of program that fits our mood, too.

Instant traffic and weather are not available in our area yet, but we would love to have it available. The weather here is very changeable and there are many accidents. The local stations we listen to don't give frequent updates, so this would be a safety feature, too.

Satellite radio is like cable or satellite television. If we didn't want it, we wouldn't be paying for it. Please let us keep our choices.
